A personalised path that ensures outstanding quality and improves your writing skills for the future

1. Sample our skills: have a short extract edited

Submit an extract (300 – 500 words) before commissioning the full text. We will assess it to ensure that we can deliver high quality work within the required period and will return a short edited sample within three business days. This sample will give you an impression of the quality of our service; it will also allow you to immediately address unforeseen issues that typically arise in editing. In our response, we will indicate how long it took to edit the sample, which will give you an impression of how long it may take to edit the full manuscript consisting of similar text.

2. Commission us: sign an agreement

If you are satisfied, you can sign an agreement with the Language Center. View a sample agreement on our website.

3. Consult with us: guide the process

You have the option to consult with the editor in person to discuss special language requirements or issues arising from the sample edit. This will help the editor ensure that your text best expresses your style and intention.

4. Rely on us: we edit your text

We edit your text using track changes. In addition, you can request clean copy with all editorial traces removed. We return the text to you to accept/reject our suggestions as you deem appropriate. You may close the procedure here. However, in our experience, two further steps greatly enhance the quality of submissions.

5. Learn for the future: consult with the editor

After we have edited the full text, you have the option of booking a personal consultation with the editor. This extends your control to the last steps. Most importantly, the editor will explain the reasoning behind certain editorial principles that can help you improve your writing for the long term.

6. Quality control: request a final proofread

To eliminate errors that slip in during the accept/reject phase, we advise you to submit your texts to us for a final proofread.
